ing every effort to obtain more data they suspected that McKane's friends were spected that McKane's friends were iding back the books, but they had no sitive proof that other books were in istence until Mr. O'Rourke and McJane's brother made the statement that he books would be examined in their hee on Court street by an expert. When Lawyer George F. Elliott heard O'Rourke's and McKane's statements at once sent for the Citisens' Comittee, to confer with him on the steps be taken to gain possession of the veted books and records.

The conference will be need late this afternoon.

Mr. O'Rourke and McKane's brother made the statement in their anxiety to clear the ex-Supervisor. They had not consulted any one, and now it was said on good authority to-day they have been taken to task for letting the cat out of the bag. It is known now that the books which the Committee have been searching for are locked up in O'Rourke's safe in his office, 40 Court street, Brooklyn.

"If this is true," said Mr. Eillott this morning, "and I have no reason to doubt it, we will take immediate steps to procure these books.

"If this is true." said Mr. Eillott this morning, "and I have no reason to doubt it, we will take immediate steps to procure these books.

"Neither the Committee nor myself are playing the part of detectives searching for fraud. My clients would be only too glad to find that the accounts of John Y. McKane are all right, and as yet all the evidence is pointing the other way, and I have some new facts in my possession which are of a startling nature—facts which I cannot make public, but which prove to my clients that all is not right.

"I will further say that while it may be true the public accounts of Gravesend may be straight and legitimate, the manner in which the accounts of Gravesend may be straight and legitimate, the manner in which the accounts are mixed up would certainly seem to indicate either great negligence or ignorance on the part of the man who kept them or gross fraud.

When asked if he knew what books Mr. O'Rourke had in his possession, if he had any, Mr. Elliot then went on to say that the Committee could not find the books of the town, kept by McKane, which were produced in evidence during his trial.

"At that time," said Mr. Elliott, "I first began the investigation, and while he was on the witness stand. I had the books there and made what notes I could. Nobody noticed what I was doing. I was then that the Committee began to see that their investigation might bring to light some queer facts, although, as I said before, it is not the intention of my clients to persecute McKane.

"We propose to sift matters to the bottom, and when the proper time comes I will make public the facts in my possession which are known only to the Committee and myself."

Mr. Elliott refused to give out any information on the next move to be made by the Committee, or what would be done to procure the books which O'Rourke is said to have in his safe.

Mr. O'Rourke was in Brooklyn this morning, Inquiry as to his whereabouts brought out little information.

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, March 13.-The Presilent to-day sent to the Senate the nomination of Samuel B. Truesdell, of Brooklyn, to be Pension Agent at New York.

Col. Samuel B. Truesdell is a Brook-lyn man and a prominent member of the G. A. R. Col. Truesdell won fame under Col. Corcoran as an officer of the Sixty-ninth Regiment. He lost a leg during the war. He is now an officer of the Sixth Army Corps Veteran Association.

The Measure May Be Reported Monday or Tuesday Next.

(By Associated Press) Finance Committee will soon reach an agreement as to the time when the Tariff bill shall be reported. There are reasons for believing that the Renublican members would consent to having the bill reported to the Senate early next week, by Monday or Tuesday, if they could be assured of ten days or two weeks after that time for preparation for the debate. Col. Breckinridge, smiling as usual, was shakirg heads with his cousin, Gen. Joseph Breckinridge, when Judge Bradley took his seat on the bench. was a moment of very impressive silence following the roll call of jurors, the Judge spening to wait for explanations from the lawyers. Then he said: "I note that the papers have laid out a course of procedure for me to follow regarding an acurrence just outside the court-room after the Court had adjourned yesterday evening, which the Court did not see, and which the parties concerned in it proposity regret as much as the Court does.

"It is not a matter of which the Court can take judicial notice. As it was past the hour of adjournment when the plaintiff's counsel had finished speaking last night, and as I noticed some evidences of excitement on the part of the defendant's counsel, I thought it best to adjourn the Court, thinking that after a night of thought over the connection in which certain words had been used, the counsel might look upon them differently. Had the trouble referred to taken place in court it would have been the duty of the Court to take judicial notice of it and he would have done so promptly."

There was a pause and a rustle of surprise, after which Judge Bradley proceeded:

When the Kings County Board of Su-

Mr. Carrisle rose to say that he wished it understood that the information had not come from any of the plaintiff's counsel, to which Judge Bradley assented, but remarked that it had been sented, but remarked that it had been given him by reputable parties.

The belligerent episode having thus been closed, Attorney Stoll, for the defense, was asking to be permitted an argument in support of his motion to suppress the depositions taken the day before the trial when Judge Bradley interposed: "I hardly think it is necessary, as the Court was about to decide in your favor."

The Judge excluded the depositions on the ground that they did not conform to the law that they must either be written out by the deponent or by the notary before whom they were taken, as they were written afterwards by typewriter.

An exception to the ruling was taken for the plaintiff.
Another deposition, that of Mrs. Mary for the plaintiff.

Another deposition, that of Mrs. Mary Logan, taken before Notary Lowry Jackson, in Cheinnati, was objected to by the defendant, but Judge Bradley decided that since more than a day had been consumed in cross-examination of Mrs. Logan, the rights of the defendant had been preserved, and admitted the deposition, the defense noting an exception.

Mrs. Logan is a Cincinnati physician, as appeared from the deposition read by Mr. Carlisie. She had in 1884 treated a young giri about to be confined, who gave the name of Monica Burgoyne, saying that her friends called aer "Mona," and the witness said that Miss Poliard, who was then in the notary's office, bore some resemblance to her, although she had doubtless changed, it was the young woman's first child, and she had represented that her husband had died or there were family reasons for keeping the birth a secret.

At the afternoon's session, plaintiff's counsel called Sister Cecila, of the Order of Sisters of Charity of Cincinnati, who said that in 1884 she had been Sister in charge, of the Convent at Norwood, O., ten miles distant from Cincinnati, by rail and five miles by road.

She did not recall that in 1885 there was a person there by the name of Burgoyne. (This was important, as Dr. Logan testified that hame.) on. Mrs. Logan is a Cincinnati physician,
